From the President

Jordan marked on November 9, 2006, the first anniversary of the unprecedented suicide bombings that shook one of the most stable countries in the Middle East. While it is with a deep feeling of sadness that Jordanians remember the innocent lives that were lost, it is also with a renewed sense of determination that they are sparked to fight terror and terrorists and to bring to justice any person who commits these crimes in the name of Islam. As a matter of fact. Islam is not a mere religion of worship, but rather, it is a system of religious beliefs and an allencompassing way of life, as well as source of a rich civilization of learning that has benefited mankind.

The bombings of last NovemberbroughtJordanians together, united them in their rejection of terrorism and made clear to them that the priority of each and every citizen lies in the stability of Jordan and in the protection of Islam and Muslims.

In fact, protecting Islam is a crucial and fundamental step towards protecting the Islamic nation and safeguarding Muslim communities worldwide.

The whole region is passing through difficult times where ignorance, misjudgments, anti-Islam sentiments, and lack of understanding on the part of Western countries are challenging Islam and threatening its very existence, identity and civilization. Subsequently, we, as devoted citizens, true Arabs, and genuine Muslims are entrusted with an additional and tremendous responsibility towards our nation, towards the Arab world, and first and foremost, towards Islam.

The situation being thus, we are lucky in Jordan, that His majesty King Abdullah II Bin Al-Hussein, guided by his vision, open-mindedness, wisdom and judicious leadership has kicked off the "The Amman Message" to serve as an authentic guide and reference to the true concept of Islam and to the lofty teachings it intends to communicate. In its major part, "The Amman Message" carries the banner of moderation in Islam and promotes tolerance and democratic pluralism, in addition to establishing distinctions between legitimate resistance and terrorism. We, in Jordan, believe that fighting terrorism entails more than security procedures and terrorist acts prevention. To the contrary, fighting terrorism is a never-ending battle for ideas that needs to be initiated by a dialogue of civilizations and among faiths, especially between the Arab and the Muslim world, on the one hand, and the West, on the other.

Islam is a religion of vibrant faith that brings comfort to people. It inspires them to lead lives based on honesty, justice, and compassion. Individuals and extremists who commit terror in the name of Islam do not represent Islam and Islam is innocent from their action.

I would like to refer to a book entitled: The Spread of Islam in the World : A History of Peaceful Preaching, by Prof. Thomas Arnold which gives an authoritative history of the expansion of Islam through peaceful preaching and missionary activity. The book, written by a Western author, emphasizes Islam as a religion of peace and not terror.

Another book by another Western author Michael H. Hart, entitled: The 100 Ranking of the Most Influential Persons in History ranks Prophet Mohammad first amongst the 100 persons cited in the book. If anything, the book attests to the author's understanding of the compassionate, benevolent and tender character of Prophet Mohammad (Peace Be Upon Him).

Extremists exist not only in Islam but in all faiths and religions as well. At the same time, freedom of expression does not mean harming others, or cursing them or underestimating them.

It is thus our duty to continue to spread "The Amman Message, which has already been translated into eight languages. These efforts will help in bringing home to people the concepts of freedom, democracy, human rights, justice and moderation as addressed in "The Amman Message" and will clarify the Islamic underpinnings of respect for religions and faiths, tolerance, delight in human life, shunning violence, and repudiating extremism, intransigence and exaggeration.

I am confident that each of us at AL al-Bayt University is ready to assume this responsibility and to work towards the prevalence of a bright image of Islam and the Arab and Muslim nation.

American Official Briefed on Islam's Lofty Message

University President Abdel Salam Al-Abbadi received in his office Mr. Warren Cosky from the Centre of Religious Freedom of the US State Department.

During the meeting, the two sides discussed issues pertaining to human rights and religious freedom in Jordan. In answering a question about AL al-Bayt University projects in encouraging the promotion human of rights and religious freedom, President Al-Abbadi referred to "The Amman Message" and its role in boosting principles of forgiveness, brotherly relations and tolerance amongst people regardless of differences in their religious faiths or beliefs. He lauded, in this regard, the wise directives issued by His Majesty King Abdullah II Bin Al-Hussein to members of the commission entrusted "The with formulating Amman Message," with a view to warding off Muslim image tarnishing, promoting a proper understanding of the faith which honors all human beings, and providing common ground amongst people of different faiths. "The Amman Message" defines the term "terrorism" which is totally and categorically rejected by the Muslim faith, Dr. Al-Abbadi added. Thus, in its major part, the "The Amman Message" is an enlightening campaign not only in the Arab and Muslim world, but in the world at large. He regretted the fact that the true concept of Islam is sometimes not clear amongst Muslim minorities residing in the West.

Al-Abbadi presenting the guest with the University shield

PresidentAl-Abbadi referred to Jordan's long-standing with dialogue concern amongst religions, given the importance of this sort of dialogue in fostering mutual understanding, peace, justice and mutual enrichment between and among followers of different faiths. He stressed that people who are deeply rooted in their own religious traditions are more capable of conserving and preserving the rights of fellow humans. Abiding by the principles and teachings of Islam is a commitment on the part of the human being towards his Creator; and it is a sacred commitment that is not founded on worldly or transitional interests. Hence, in societies where such a commitment is not found. or in times when people abandon their faith in God, a remarkably high rate of crimes towards women and children are recorded. and an increasingly high rate of vandalism and theft incidents are noticed. Hence, understanding, mutual rapprochement and respect of others is needed to serve as a common ground for people's behaviors and manner of conduct.

He cited the contribution of some institutions operating in the Kingdom in this regard, like the Royal Academy for Islamic Civilization Research (Al Albait Foundation), which has been preoccupied, over the past years, in organizing more than 30 open dialogues between followers of the Muslim and Christian faiths covering the various sects and denominations in both religions. Such dialogues even addressed social issues; family, women and children: as well as international relations. Proceedings of these dialogues have been compiled and published in books kept within the holdings of the Foundation's library for documentation and future reference

Answering a question about means of communicating the content of "The Amman Message" to the local, regional and international communities. Dr A1-Abbadi cited conferences, symposia, media and school and university curricula as effective means of bringing hometoallpeople the concept of this message. He referred to ongoing efforts on the part of the Jordanian Ministry of Education in revising curricula in accordance with the correct and genuine teachings of Islam, with a view to informing the youth generation of the lofty teachings of the Muslim faith. Jordan served as an example, in this regard, and some Arab countries followed suite in revising their curricula. He said that it is easy to misguide the young generation and to present them with false or distorted images about Islam, especially when it comes to Muslim minorities residing in the USA or the West. He noted that inauthentic reference books and material written about Islam is the main cause for promoting unjust campaigns and incorrect information about Islam

Referring to Islam as a religion of tolerance, Dr. Al-Abbadi cited a story about Prophet Mohammad (Peace be upon him) when he allowed the Christians of Najran in his mosque in Madinah. When the time of their prayer was due, they prayed in the mosque towards the eastern direction. He said to his Companions: "Leave them (to perform prayer)." If anything, this incident is a witness of the noble character of Prophet Mohammad (peace and blessings be upon him).

Dr. Al-Abbadi stressed that it is not easy for a good Muslim to abandon his faith. He highlighted the importance Muslims of informing about their faith. Islam, he added, categorically rejects terrorism which is associated with wrongful and unethical acts and practices. He said that those who commit such acts in the name of Islam are by no means true Muslims. He stressed the importance of utilizing the media in a sound, scientific manner, without weakness or emotional outbursts. This, he said, applies to all forms of TV programs, documentary references films. and curricula.

Dr. Al-Abbadi concluded the meeting by underscoring the need to understand Islam by consulting authentic Muslim sources that are written by acknowledged Muslim scholars. This also applies to Christianity where this faith should be understood by consulting authentic Christian sources that are written by acknowledged Christian scholars.

At the end of the meeting, President Al-Abbadi presented the guest with the University shield.

Conference

Organized by the Department of Modern Languages of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities

First Francophone Conference Addresses interculturalism in the Teaching of French as a Foreign Language University President Abdel Salam Al-Abbadi underscored the efforts exerted by AL al-Bayt University, ever since the early years of its inception, to construct bridges of rapprochement and communication between and among world cultures and civilizations.

President Al-Abbadi

The inauguration session was addressing the First Francophone Conference which convened at AL al-Bayt University on November 29 _ 30, 2006 under the title: "Interculturalism in the Teaching of French as a Foreign Language." He briefed attendants on the University's language programs in the various Arabic, European and languages of the Muslim nations.

In her address on the occasion, Dr. Hind Abu Sha'er, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities said that teaching students a foreign language may provide them with the edge to succeed in their life and to facilitate genuine interaction with others.

Referring to the theme of the conference, Dr. Abu Sha'er said that it is not easy to dissociate a language of its cultural context. It is thus adequate to say that a person who speaks good French is well versed in the French culture. Educationalists and educators attach great importance cultural to knowledge in foreign language teaching because this knowledge facilitates the grasping of the language and mastering it in a relatively short span of time. Indeed, to learn a language is not limited to knowing how to conjugate a verb, or to write a statement. but rather. knowing people's habits, culture and civilization; all of which are essential components of the overall learning process of this language.

On behalf of the University Fancophone Agency, Mr. Olivier Garrot addressed the inauguration session and commended this cooperation with AL al-Bayt University which will bring peoples of two cultures close together.

Attendees addressed the following three themes during the various sessions of the conference:

1. The Role of Cultural

Knowledge the in of Good Use the Foreign Language. Cultural knowledge learning helps a foreign language and using it efficiently and correctly. The difference between a person who has a good knowledge of a language and a person who is capable of appropriately using this language, lies in the fact that the first possess a good grammatical use. whereas the second masters a good contextual use.

- 2. The Interaction Between Teacher, Learner and Method of Teaching French as a Foreign Language
- To teach students the language of a culture that is different from theirs can have its negative and positive effects at the same time. What occurs in the classroom is by no means limited to teaching and training. Other situations of explicit and implicit communications occur between the teacher the students and which, subsequently, require a mutual comprehension. Is it possible to make method adapted a learning of to а given culture? Is it necessary to make a method to teach only the culture? Is it necessary to teach the culture through the language, or the language through the culture? The various papers submitted to this conference were intended to address these questions.

3 The Use of Authentic Documents as Support in the Teaching French as a Foreign Language

What is an authentic document? Can one find authentic documents that can well be adapted to each level of learning? How can authentic documents be inserted in the classroom? Is it necessary to take into account the cultural censures? Answers to these questions were provided by the research papers submitted by panelists on this occasion

1234567 \ge 9 + 8 = 11111111
12345678 \times 9 + 9 = 111111111
123456789 x 9 +10= 111111111

9 x 9 + 7 = 88

98 x 9 + 6 = 888

987 x 9 + 5 = 8888

9876 x 9 + 4 = 88888

98765 x 9 + 3 = 888888

987654 x 9 + 2 = 8888888

9876543 x 9 + 1 = 88888888

98765432 x 9 + 0 = 888888888

Brilliant, isn't it?

And finally, take a look at this symmetry:

1 x 1 = 1
11 x 11 = 121
111 x 111 = 12321
1111 x 1111 = 1234321
1111 x 11111 = 123454321
11111 x 111111 = 12345654321
111111 x 1111111 = 1234567654321
1111111 x 1111111 = 123456787654321
11111111 x 11111111 = 12345678987654321

Sand and Stone

A story tells that two friends were walking through the desert. During some point of the journey, they had an argument, and one friend slapped the other one in the face. The one who got slapped was hurt, but without saying anything, he wrote in the sand:

Today my best friend slapped me in the face.

They kept on walking, until they found an oasis, where they decided to take a bath. The one who had been slapped got stuck in the mire and started drowning, but his friend saved him. After he recovered from the near drowning, he wrote on a stone:

Today my best friend saved my life.

The friend, who had slapped and saved his best friend, asked him, "After I hurt you, you wrote in the sand, and now, you write on a stone, why?"

The other friend replied: "When someone hurts us, we should write it down in sand, where the winds of forgiveness can erase it away, but when someone does something good for us, we must engrave it in stone where no wind can ever erase it.

Learn to write your hurts in the sand and to carve your blessings in stone.
